

HOME >> NEWS >> SINGAPORE

Firms pool resources to help in disaster relief

Amelia Teng | The Straits Times | Monday, Nov 03, 2014

Photo: Tamen J. Tiong Zone E RC

A construction company has joined hands with four other firms to help communities living in disaster-prone areas.

HSL Constructor has started a platform that will allow firms to play a bigger role in humanitarian aid and disaster response in Asia.

The home-grown marine civil engineering and construction firm is giving $1 million in seed funding to the initiative - the Corporate Citizen Foundation (CCF).

It was launched yesterday at HSL Waterfront@Penjuru, the company's new facility in Jurong.

Deputy Prime Minister and Finance Minister Tharman Shanmugaratnam, guest of honour at the event, said the corporate sector is an important source of donations.

"But our companies are also increasingly a source of specialised resources and skills, organisational capacity and rich contacts," he said.

Five companies, including health-care provider Thomson Medical and Pacific Flight Services, will provide resources for the CCF's first programme, known as Swift Emergency Evaluation Deployment.

Pacific Flight Services, a wholly owned subsidiary of Singapore Technologies (ST) Aerospace, will supply Lear jets for flights into disaster-stricken areas.

Thomson Medical and HSL Constructor will provide medical and engineering personnel.

Golden Season, which produces humanitarian supplies such as ration packs and mobile shelters, will supply portable water-purification systems.

MediaCorp will help in news coverage to provide early and first-hand ground information from areas hit by disasters.

In his speech, Mr Tharman said South-east Asia is one of the most disaster-prone regions.

Last year's deadliest natural disaster was Super Typhoon Haiyan, which hit the Philippines in November. It left nearly 8,000 people dead.

"Singapore is a small country, but we seek to make a useful contribution to international (disaster response) efforts, with knowledge and expertise in niche areas, as well as logistics links and networks to facilitate swift movement of aid workers and supplies to disaster areas," said Mr Tharman, noting that Singapore hosts the Changi Regional Humanitarian Assistance and Disaster Relief Coordination Centre.

LATEST NEWS

- ▶ US pressure prompts S. Korea pullout of China airshow
- ▶ Jawbone launches new wearable fitness trackers
- ▶ Taliban group threatens to attack India following border blast
- ▶ Typhoon Haiyan survivors rebuild lives with farming, pigs, stores
- ▶ Malaysia, Netherlands keep pressing for access to MH17 site
- ▶ Malaysia, Netherlands keep pressing for access to MH17 site
- ▶ Disaster for Obama as Republicans win US Senate
- ▶ Obama, post-midterm loss, must re-energize presidency
- ▶ Batam to have Asia's first movie-themed holiday resort by 2018
- ▶ Enjoy 1 free ride at Megazip Adventure Park on Nov 11

MOST READ

Pacific Flight Services general manager Loke Geok Wan said it conducts around 200 regional medical emergency flights a year.

"We are acutely aware of the tight race we have to run in times of natural disasters," she said. "Within two hours of activation, we can convert our aircraft into flying ambulances, complete with a two-person medical team."

Thomson Medical's group president, Dr Chan Boon Kheng, said it felt honoured being able to work with the CCF to provide "quick assessment of health-care needs in the event of natural catastrophes occurring in the region".

ateng@sph.com.sg

THE STRAITS TIMES

This article was first published on Nov 1, 2014.

Get a copy of The Straits Times or go to straitstimes.com for more stories.

Become a fan on Facebook

Follow @sphasiaone < 15K followers

news LINK news POST Purchase this article for republication.

your SAY!

More from AsiaOne

New direct flights between Singapore and Mongolia

Economic sense of a second Singapore

Philippines police file charges against US Marine in murder case

16 organisations, individuals recognised for green efforts at

From around the web

Hawaii Lava Flow Photos
TWC Central

8 Iconic Celebrity Body-Paint Moments
Glam

Family Physician Hired a Hit Man to Silence Her... Permanently
The Medical Bag

Tom Hanks Reveals Startling Health News On 'Late Lifescript' Recommended by

ALSO SEE

- ▶ China Steel to build new alloy plant in Malaysia
- ▶ 'Thumbs up' for reducing air-con use in classrooms
- ▶ More schools going local for literature

- ▶ Tourist kneels & begs for refund at Sim Lim Square
- ▶ Are these celebs helped by plastic surgery?
- ▶ Here's how you make your own instant noodles
- ▶ Korean actress is 'world's 2nd most beautiful woman'
- ▶ 2-bedroom apartment makes most of small space
- ▶ When plastic surgery goes wrong
- ▶ Driver attempts 3-point turn in CTE tunnel, causes...
- ▶ Girl, 7, has extreme mood swings from brain tumour
- ▶ More Viet women's marriages to SG men annulled

LIFESTYLE

His secret habits

Kuching city guide

Food myths debunked

AsiaOne Like

102,557 people like AsiaOne.

Facebook social plugin

Contact us Site Map Privacy Statement About Us Advertising

Search AsiaOne...

Search

asiaone

SPH DIGITAL

NEWS

Singapore
Malaysia
World
Asia
Business
Science and Tech
Crime
Showbiz
Sports

LIFESTYLE

Women
Digital
Travel
Luxury
Soshiok
Education
Transport
YourHealth

Forum Services

